Touch-up Painting – this is considered routine work and there is no cost to your department. This would include removing unneeded wall mounting hardware, patching holes, and applying paint to these small repairs, or any other marks, gouges, on the wall(s).

Re-paint (wall to wall) – this would include the same effort described above, but with painting entire surfaces from wall to wall and floor to ceiling. A proposal for this work would be provided to the requesting department as an estimate for approval and paid out of their operational budget.

An exception to the department not being responsible for funding for painting service costs would be due to a failure in building maintenance or an insurance claim due to unforeseen circumstances.
